Gardening made easy and local (<http://8z.com/articles/gardening-made-easy-and-local>)

By Jane Johnston, Neighborhood Contributor

Are you looking for an easy way to brighten up your garden, save water and be more environmentally friendly? Superior and the City of Boulder have partnered with Garden-in-a-Box sponsored by the Center for Resource Conservation. Garden-in-a-Box is exactly that...themed plants delivered to your home in a box.

This year residents can choose from three boxes: Sunset Garden (Front Range perennials), Garden of Gold (flowers of golden and orange hues) and Cool Connections (a host of purples and violets). A professional landscape designer has designed each combination with the local environment in mind. each box costs a little over $100 depending on your selection.

The Center for Resource Conservations states that the selected plants and flowers in the boxes use half the water of many traditional garden options since all contain xeriscaping plants and cost about half as much! To see an example of the Cool Connections garden stop by the East Boulder Recreation Center. Each box comes with a design plan as well so you can follow along. Boxes can now be ordered through June. For more information on the Garden-In-a-Box program check out the center's website \(http://conservationcenter.org/water-home/garden-in-a-box-sale/\).
